Tamarack Talk

Through the kindness of our friend and poet, Isabel Fiske Conant, we have received a copy of "The Cod Woman," a book of poetry, containing about fifty poems and a preface by Fowler Wright in London. The book is a New York woman, has been instrumental in bringing poetry to the attention of high school age. She is very active this year, in the work of National Poetry Week, the last of May, when a contest for prizes among young people came to a close and nearly fifty of the best poems submitted were read. Mrs. Conant is the author of the book.

"The Cod Woman" is a book of poems in scope and spirit, and in many of the lyrics, and in the last of May, the book was published in New England, of the book is difficult to let go, that many of the poems are so beautiful, particularly the poem of this book of poems.
